SCERTS is a comprehensive multi-disciplinary curriculum for students with social and communication difficulties. It is evidence- and research-based curriculum that has been widely accepted by peers as a vital approach to teaching students the skills to develop the language in order to interact communicatively and socially with peers, in the classroom and community, and at home. This workshop is intended for staff currently using SCERTS to maintain and improve service delivery, curriculum and supports to the concepts and teaching strategies to facilitate social communication competence.
